I am writing in support of Good Stuff and all the restaurants, really. The best part of the beach and California is eating on the patio year round. It is a privilege for locals and tourists alike. There is plenty of room between the hotel and patio. The only view the umbrellas block is the parking structure and garbage dumpster's view. Stop taking away good things that don't bother anyone, and work on actual issues.

I am writing to express support for the outdoor seating at good stuff. It is not blocking anyone's view or access to the beach. Good stuff has been an iconic restaurant in Hermosa Beach for decades. It would be foolish to take away business by taking away the seating!

The restaurant is an iconic place and part of the California beach culture. It does NOT block beach view and provides PLENTY of space between parking lot and beach. It will be a shame to close the patio - patio is part of beach culture! Thank you!

Outdoor seating has brought an added element of fun and socializing to the beach cities. It has livened up the area, increased business, and shown more local love. It also has prevented tents from being pitched onto the sidewalks. Unfortunately, in LA, many businesses rather give precedence to blocking sidewalks, making it hard to reach businesses or unsafe. I love the vibe and feeling of being local that the outdoor area gives.
