eComment: Crossfit Horsepower is not only a positive environment for local community members, but it also provides a wonderful opportunity for individual growth. Crossfit is located in an industrial zone and has operated the business within their boundaries. For all the good they provide for the community it is not fair to punish them for operating within their rights. The owners have gone to extreme measures to try and appease the noise complaints as best as possible - they are doing everything they can in a cooperative manner to help solve this issue. Removing Crossfit Horsepower is not going to solve any problems. Are we going to limit all businesses for "noise" from now on? This is a slippery slope to go down. What kind of precedent are we setting? The neighbors who moved into these units knew they were moving in next to an industrial zone. This is like moving in next to a highway and complaining about traffic noise. I urge you to think about the negative impact removing Horsepower would have on the community both residents and non-residents alike.
